

One dimension

By Luqman Reza

"Here they lie

While the whole world wails and cries

Mourning their tragic deaths

Vowing to take revenge

Weeks go by

Their names now branded in history

As the victims of burning and basic fury

Of one dimensional savagery

Not possibly The victims of insanity political reactionaries people sick of the freedom of speech hypocrisy the antagonizing of their faith the forced silence that lay in the wake of outright oppression and genocide of their fellow people far and wide

They're Muslims, they seek nothing but pain

They couldn't possibly have thought anything, yet they couldn't be insane

It's who they are, it's what they do

No matter what proof you bring I refuse to listen to you."

In other news this week:

175 contract Ebola

The world doesn't even stop to stare

45 lose their lives to Al-Qaeda

God knows where

2,000 killed in Nigeria

But no one seems to care

7.6 million still displaced in Syria

No aid given to relieve their despair

Tens of thousands too in Gaza

But all the world chooses to do

Is turn a blind eye and leave chaos to ensue
