We would like to call to your attention the obliteration of Palestinian rights under Israel's genocidal onslaught in Gaza.

Even as the International Court of Justice considers whether the legal definition of genocide has been met, the destruction of lives, homes, infrastructure and the basic means of living continue unabated.

To date over 30,000 civilians have been killed by Israeli bombs and bullets, the majority of them being women and children.

Brick by brick, Israel is dismantling the legal rights of Palestinians under the pretext of self-defence.

By bombing and starving them and destroying essential infrastructure including even hospitals, it is deliberately making it impossible to live in Gaza.

It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that this is part of a campaign to try and ethnically cleanse Palestinians from the territory.

Unfortunately, it would appear that many states are colluding in this criminal aim with their inaction and active complicity.

In the last two weeks we have seen them bolstering Israel's deliberate attempt to undermine the credibility of UNRWA by accepting unquestioningly Israeli accusations that it is a haven for terrorists.

The same countries have withdrawn funding for UNRWA making it extremely difficult for the agency to carry out its mandate to serve impoverished Palestinians in their hour of greatest need.

And while the world's gaze is fixed on Gaza Israeli troops have intensified their abuses in the West Bank, routinely invading more Palestinian towns and villages, tearing up infrastructure and killing and imprisoning innocent people.

The failure of the international community to protect Palestinians also speaks to the double standards of a world that rushed to the aid of white Europeans in Ukraine when that country was invaded by Russia.

Palestine remains a critical test for the UN. If it is to retain any credibility as the upholder of a rules-based world order in which all countries and peoples are treated equally, it must act immediately to protect the Palestinians.
